The previous edition of Bruce Peel's Bibliography was hailed by authorities as the single, finest introduction to the literature of the Canadian Prairies ever compiled, and one of the pioneering monuments of Canadian bibliographic scholarship. It now appears in a greatly expanded and revised edition. For years prior to his death in 1998, Peel laboured, with the assistance of volunteers, to collect additional material. Although he had planned to issue only a supplement to the second edition, additional entries multiplied until it became clear that an entirely new edition was warranted. Sixty-five per cent larger than its predecessor, this edition features over 3000 new entries, bringing the total to more than 7400. All entries are integrated into one continuously numbered sequence, and a table has been added that cross

Foreword

It is a double pleasure to write a foreword for this revised and greatly expanded edition of Peel's bibliography of the Canadian prairies. First, it reflects a measure of institutional pride on behalf of the University of Alberta, to which the late Bruce Braden Peel devoted more than three decades of his long and successful career, and with which he was so completely identified; and, second, because as a young graduate student I found this work to be a tremendous resource in developing my doctoral dissertation.

The importance of the work of bibliographers to scholars and scholarship can scarcely be overstated. They explore and chart the bibliographic landscape, and blaze trails for scholars in many and various disciplines to follow. Bruce Peel was the Canadian prairies' own trail-blazing bibliographer, and the significance of his work, so eloquently described by my predecessors in their forewords to the first two editions of this book, has only grown with the passage of time, and the flowering of Western Canadian studies.

We may hope that the publication of this new edition, revised and enlarged by present University of Alberta bibliographers Ernie Ingles and Merrill Distad, will serve not only the continuing needs of scholarship, but may also inspire future generations of bibliographers to carry on the work of bibliographic exploration and discovery. This indispensable bibliography will take on new life and form, and will continue to flourish and grow as the rootstock of our institution's Peel's Prairie Provinces website.

Introduction

The history of western Canada is recorded in its publications, and the image of the West, both its self image and the stereotyped images that persist elsewhere, are framed by and reflected in those publications. The traditional image of western Canadians as rural, agrarian, proudly independent, and rather conservative, is abundantly reflected in our region's predominant early literary genres: accounts of exploration, travel, and settlement; immigration literature promoting visions of independent farmers and ranchers; settlers' accounts and memoirs, small town histories bursting with pride in local communities and their achievements; and, imaginative literature depicting western settlers overcoming and taming nature. Clearly, the history and the image of the Canadian West is reflected in its printed documents. Those who undertake to study or write that history will always be greatly beholden and dependent upon the work of the bibliographer, and Bruce Peel has been the bibliographer most closely associated with the Canadian prairies.

Bruce Peel's A bibliography of the Prairie Provinces to 1953 (1956, 2nd edition 1974) appeared two decades before Canadian Studies became academically fashionable, or a part of our concerns with our national identity. Many titles have come to light since the publication of the second edition, and the phrase "Not in Peel" has become synonymous with scarcity as well as a bookseller's justification for high prices. Preparing a bibliography of the Canadian prairies presents a number of special challenges, as Peel noted when he asked rhetorically, "Why are the titles relating to the Prairie Provinces so elusive?" It was, he explained, because, of early descriptive publications intended for the perusal of persons outside the region, I allude to the scores of immigration pamphlets. Further, until recent decades there has been a paucity of local library and archival depositories in the Prairie region, where Prairie titles might be expected to repose. Even if a library has regional pamphlets, these were likely to be in dusty storage, unappreciated and uncatalogued.

When the first edition was published in 1956, no less a reviewer than W.L. Morton, writing in Canadian Historical Review, declared it "a priceless tool for all students of prairie history and literature and a fascinating compilation through which to browse."¹ Another reviewer hailed it as the product of "ten years of exhaustive and painstaking research."² It contained 2,769 numbered items. In 1963 a 130-page Supplement was published which added a further 475 titles. When the second edition appeared in 1973, its 4,408 numbered entries were described by one reviewer as "abundant evidence of Mr Peel's bird-dog instincts in tracking down every item of possible eligibility for his bibliography"³ and shared the sentiment with still another reviewer that, "perhaps it is not too early to express the hope that the work will be continued and that there will be further editions of this important reference work."⁴

The closing date of 1953 was chosen in part because it marked the beginning of the National Library of Canada's copyright deposit program, which, along with the regular publication of the Canadiana bibliography, brought better bibliographic control, as well as access to Canadian imprints. Nonetheless, in the second edition Peel felt compelled to include a number of titles of later date, by inserting them as unnumbered addenda in the subject index. These along with numerous late entries designated with the suffixes "A" and "B" brought the total number of entries in the second edition to more than 4,400. The basic structure of the book reflects some degree of idiosyncrasy. Nonetheless, over the years reviewers and others have commented upon the book's eminent utility, if not "user-friendliness."

Montreal bookseller Bernard Ammann, who initially tried to dissuade Peel from including any biographical notes, later admitted that he found them a very useful feature. As for the book's boundaries for inclusion. Peel made clear the need for selectivity: "a regional bibliographer quickly finds that he must exclude certain forms of material as too unmanageable, and certain topics as peripheral to the central theme," such as works that were national and/or federal in scope, albeit containing material on the prairies, for "Had these been included the bibliography would have had no limits."⁶ Peel rarely felt the need to make apologies for compiling bibliographies, but on one occasion he observed that bibliographers may be the oddest form of collector: "for they collect not the corporeal, but only the whiff of its essence. To psychoanalysts the bibliographer is basically a bibliophile who, too poor to buy books, finds an outlet for his frustrations by copying book titles on scraps of paper. Yet I like to think that these eccentrics are also preservers of our cultural heritage."⁷

Expanding on this theme, he added

A bibliography is more than a record of books; it is a record of the people who wrote and published. Some prairie poets might have better ended up more glorious: Millions in country churchyards, than to have published their literary remains. But I feel sympathy, nay affection, for all these people who expressed such creativity as they had—in the preparation of a book or a pamphlet. And they owe me something too, for by my record the names of many have been preserved from oblivion.⁸ It has pleased me to counterpane this western Canadian author entries in library catalogues, perhaps all over the world, are more complete because of my searches. This is psychic income—and being unpayable, is all the sweeter.⁹

For all of Peel's enthusiasm, this third edition of his bibliography might never have appeared, but for the encouragement and collaboration of others. Booksellers are a bibliographer's natural allies and collaborators. They devote their working lives to the pursuit and handling of potential bibliographic entries; they have a vested interest in the existence of trustworthy bibliographies and the information and bibliographic control they provide; and they have enormous resources of knowledge and experience to bring to the task, but seldom have the time to do all of the formal work of the bibliographer. As Bruce Peel himself put it, "Users of my bibliographies, particularly booksellers, have played a game for years—trying to find pamphlets "Not in Peel." The booksellers play for cash, hoping to hit the jackpot with a rarity. These Canadiana dealers are my best source of post-publication information on pamphlets that I have missed, and I acknowledge my indebtedness to them."¹⁰

That was written in 1975, soon after the publication of the second edition. The appearance of any bibliography is certain to flush more titles out of the bibliographic underbrush. As the years went by, the "Not in Peel" correspondence from booksellers and others bulked into a small torrent, and Peel continued recording fugitive titles. Ultimately, it was booksellers who helped goad him into tackling a new edition, although originally conceived only as a modest supplement to the second edition, by debagging him with suggested new entries. On at least one occasion, however, Peel's patience wore somewhat thin. Feeling that he was being pressured into undertaking the demanding task of producing a third edition, he wrote to one bookseller and pleaded by way of excuse that he was an "old man" who merely wished to be left in peace.

Two booksellers have made such significant contributions to this project that their role as collaborators must be acknowledged, for, in several senses, without them it would never have come to fruition. Tim Williams, of Calgary, began submitting suggested titles to Peel as early as 1970–1971, as the second edition was in preparation, for which Peel sent grateful thanks in a letter of October 1972, in which he announced the final dispatch of copy to the press. In January 1974, Peel wrote to Williams to thank him for continuing to send proposed entries, and noted that "Your letter inspired me to retreat to my den and organize a small file of additional titles, biographical notices, and corrections. I suppose I will have to bring out a supplement to this second edition a decade hence. My wife might disown me if I got too involved in another lengthy compilation."¹¹ Again, in June of that year, acknowledging a further list of proposals for the bibliography, Peel wrote: "I had hoped to be rid of it, but I guess I had better trudge on with a view to again bringing out a supplement. I have had some letters from other people suggesting additional titles, but you continue to be my best source."¹²

The Peel-Williams correspondence continued over the next two decades, and makes interesting reading, as much for its anecdotal content, as for the chronicle it provides of the progress of Peel's bibliographic research. After Peel's retirement, the pace picked up somewhat. In the spring of 1984, Peel wrote to acknowledge yet another parcel of suggested titles from Williams, and reported on his recent and projected travel itinerary.

Despite interruptions Peel declared "I am a perennial optimist and expect to really concentrate on the project later in the summer. As for timing of the completion of the project, I am thinking in terms of another year at least."¹² But at this point, he was still thinking only in terms of a supplementary publication. Almost a decade later, in August 1993, following a visit to the University of Toronto Press, he wrote Williams of his surprise that the Press wished to publish a full-scale, cumulative third edition, and not merely a supplement. In a letter to Williams the following month he raised the subject of acknowledging Williams' contributions on the title-page of the new edition, and added, "You are probably not aware of it but had you not started sending me titles I had missed, I would not have realized how many there were 'Not in Peel' and so would never have thought of continuing the work. But for you, a new bibliography might not be in the works."¹³ Peel's subsequent letters to Williams chronicle his struggles with "scissors & paste," his dread at the thought of all the indexing that was yet to come, and, sadly, the progress of the Parkinson's disease that brought the work to a virtual standstill late in 1995.

A second major collaborator, Regina bookseller Richard Spafford, began submitting proposed entries to Peel in the late 1970s, and continued to do so over the next two decades. As with Tom Williams, Spafford's business brought endless rare and obscure Canadian titles under his gaze, and when he failed to find an appropriate item in Peel, he sent photocopies of title pages and prefaces, on which he noted pagination and other pertinent details. Peel's correspondence with Spafford mirrors that with Williams, including complaints about the many distractions and interruptions that slowed his progress, musings about the low literary quality of seemingly endless, self-published volumes of prairie poets, and, finally, a wistful reflection that, "I started compiling a prairie provinces bibliography in 1946 when I started work at the dear old University of Saskatchewan. So it is time I finished the task, for if I am still working on it three more years, I will have toiled for half a century!"¹⁴

The toil was not merely facinated, but also to a great degree energized and motivated by these booksellers who served as bibliographic collaborators. Nevertheless, the third edition remained uncompleted at Bruce Peel's death late in 1998. When we proposed to the Peel family that we would carry it forward to completion and publication, they honoured us with their blessing, and have enabled us, in our turn as collaborators, to earn some of what Peel called his "psychic income." Moreover, the work of prairie bibliography will not cease with the publication of this revised and expanded third edition. The bibliographic database now forms the core of Peel's Prairie Provinces (www.peel.library.ualberta.ca), a scholarly portal devoted to Western Canadian studies. Not only does this website allow for future growth and development of Peel's bibliography, as an ongoing work, but it features an ever-growing number of Peel titles in full text. This website would have pleased its namesake, and will serve as a further testament to the bibliographic vision and diligence of Bruce Peel.

A novel feature of this standard reference work is the historical overview provided by the primary chronological organization of entries according to the period of the events recorded, and only secondary organization by author. Despite all its attendant challenges, we have tried to maintain the integrity of this design. Nonetheless, readers familiar with the earlier editions will note some substantial shifts in sequence as a result of more accurate assessments of "dates of activity." This method of organization makes the author, title, and subject indices critically important, and numerous improvements have been made, such as giving authors' names in full, whenever possible, regardless of catalogue name authorities or their form on title-pages; citing complete titles wherever possible; and employing 1,825 subject headings proper names of people, places, and institutions, as well as others drawn from the Canadian thesaurus (4th edition, 1993). The great increase in subject headings in the subject index of this third edition precluded the listing of short titles in addition to the item numbers; however, the title index provides much fuller titles than in former editions, as well as cover titles and other variants where possible, and, once again, the author index includes brief biographies, which are now far more numerous, and provide essential personal data on many writers and illustrators.

This third edition contains 7,429 numbered entries as compared with over 4,400 in its predecessor—a 60 percent increase—not counting the 1,103 additional titles mentioned in the annotations, although these, too, have been indexed. This massive increase in the number of items rendered a complete renumbering of entries inescapable, though we are mindful of the inconvenience this will entail. Therefore, we have included a conversion table to convert Peel II numbers into their Peel III counterparts. Duplicate entries in Peel II have been combined, although some only belatedly discovered entailed the cancellation of six item numbers from the new sequence. A number of apparent “ghosts” have been labelled as suspiciously scarce, or eliminated altogether. Some Peel II entries have been split, and a few geographically inappropriate ones have been removed. A new index of works in languages other than English has been added, and the list of pseudonyms and initials has been enlarged. Among other innovations, we have endeavoured to cite first editions and English/French-language co-editions wherever possible, as well as to note the existence of later facsimile reprints. We have not included either the library locations of copies examined, or printed sources of bibliographic information. The availability of major library catalogues online has greatly diminished the need for such features.

Although Bruce Peel appreciated the need to define and establish limits, he also recognized a greater imperative to transgress them on occasion. Thus, he decreed the exclusion of a number of large categories of publications, while admitting many exceptions, specifically Canadian federal government publications, such as the bulletins and other publications of the federal Department of Agriculture and the Canadian Geological Survey, because they are well controlled bibliographically and just too numerous, although he did include British Parliamentary Papers (“blue books”), early Canadian Sessional Papers, and agricultural and geological bulletins and reports for their essential information about the region. Similarly, he sought to exclude publications of the governments of the three Prairie Provinces (due to sheer quantity), partisan political publications without specific prairie reference or relevance, publications by and about the railways after they had become established as national institutions (the early material is included), later travellers’ accounts of journeys not primarily focused on the prairies (though earlier explorers’ accounts are included because of a paucity of sources from that period), and newspapers and many other serial forms of publication (though offprints and extracts are sometimes included).

Peel originally intended to include literary works by all prairie authors, but found the simple category “prairie author” dauntingly prolific, so his focus remained on literary works with an obvious prairie setting or theme. The depths of this literature have been plumbed by University of Alberta English professor Richard Harrison, who calculated that “an average of about five book-length fictions set wholly or partly on the prairie appeared each year” over the century from 1880 to 1980.¹⁴ Had Peel succeeded in capturing all of these titles, they would have represented over 10 percent of the total number of entries which actually appeared in the second edition. It also proved necessary to exclude works by prairie authors on non-prairie related topics, including many works of scholarship. This level of inconsistency has generated misunderstanding and some criticism about titles included as well as those excluded. Indeed, he admitted that one of his greatest challenges was in defining the territorial boundaries of the prairie region, and that he often had to make arbitrary and less-than-consistent judgement calls.

Because his bibliography and the items it enumerates are always cited as “Peel,” we have altered the title to Peel’s bibliography. The original title a reference to “Prairie Provinces” was also misleading; in practice, Peel generally confined himself to the prairie regions of the three prairie provinces, and usually excluded material which focused on the alpine, boreal, and sub-arctic regions. Therefore, we have also dropped the word "provinces." However to title A Peel's bibliography of the prairies might have prompted innocent readers to search in vain for titles relating to Kansas and Nebraska. Hence, the current title, Peel's bibliography of the Canadian prairies to 1953.

Acknowledgements

Finally, we should like to thank the host of people whose assistance and co-operation were essential to the completion of this third edition, beginning with members of Bruce Peel's immediate family Margaret Peel, Aaron Peel Nussbaumer, and Brian Peel, for allowing us to undertake it. The key role played by booksellers Tom Williams and Richard Spafford has been described above. Darcy Sharman keyed the contents of the second edition and the bulk of the new entries into a ProCite® database. Lorraine Strilesky brought her cataloguer's expertise to the analysis and assignment of subject headings. Linda Distad verified, expanded, and corrected the great majority of the bibliographic entries by consulting online library catalogues on three continents, and added many new entries, annotations, and biographies of authors and illustrators.

Foreword to the 1973 second edition

The first edition of Bruce Peel's Bibliography of the Prairie Provinces appeared in 1956. It quickly gained a deserved reputation as one of those basic bibliographical tools without which historian, librarian, social scientist researcher, Canadiana dealer, academic could not, any longer, find his or her way through the literature on the prairie provinces of Canada. The late F. Hedley Auld, the then Chancellor of the University of Saskatchewan, wrote the Foreword to the first edition. He noted how the bibliography "pictures kaleidoscopically the occupation and development of a region of great agricultural importance which became in the course of a few decades the new home of a multitude." He noted further that the events encompassed in the bibliography were so recent that many persons were still living who had a part in the actual occurrence.

It was a commentary on the interest sparked by Mr. Peel in Western Canadiana that many titles not listed in 1956 came to light in the years immediately following publication. A Supplement to the Bibliography was prepared by Mr. Peel and published by University of Toronto Press in 1963. Now, ten years later, a new, enlarged edition of the original work is to appear.

Bruce Peel's Preface to the Enlarged Edition is at once a comprehensive introduction to the bibliography and a general comment on the lure of bibliographical research. The bibliophile who would succeed must have patience, pertinacity, time, money, interest, friends, prestige—and a publisher—if he or she is to bring a project to fruition. Mr. Peel's interest, ability, pertinacity, and dedication shine through the piece. And what a piece it is! When the Northwest became a formal possession of Canada there was at once provided for the young nation a backdrop of nature's best, on which broad canvas man might trace out, and work out, and record his progress.

The Bibliography of the Prairie Provinces in its enlarged form carries forward the arrangement found so successful in the first edition. Chronology, subject, title, and author arrangements give added emphasis to the time factor, the rhythm of change from fur trade to agricultural pursuits, and the development of a regional literature written by prairie dwellers. The chronological arrangement is particularly helpful to the researcher who must find his way through eighteenth and nineteenth century writings, and who must weigh the relevance and importance of each work. No apology need be offered for the need of addenda. A pioneer work such as the Peel bibliography will not be definitive and it is only to be expected that unlisted items will continue to appear. The value of the addenda far outweighs the minor irritation of a break in the serenity of the chronology.

The Peel bibliography ranks and deserves to rank with the great bibliographical works of Canada. It is a tribute to devoted research, and it is a work of scholarship. The subject arrangement speaks of the basic ingredients of the western land—space, sun, wind, water, and man's coming to terms with these forces. Students of prairie society will ignore these environmental factors at their peril, and come to terms with them to their advantage.

Prairie Canada is a young society as men count time. The memory of man is short and subject to erosion. Oral history, tradition, legend, and myth slide into time past, to be obscured and lost amidst the fastnesses of ridges of memory formed of times long spent. Were it not for signposts, no one could find his way back of beyond. The Peel Bibliography provides a clear, well marked, and dependable highway back through our history to our beginnings. This work is a contribution to scholarship and a landmark in our western cultural development.

Bruce Peel's preface to the 1973 second edition

With the presentation of this enlarged edition of the bibliography of the Prairie Provinces the bibliographer completes a project begun by happenstance twenty-six years ago. On a September afternoon on the University of Saskatchewan campus the president and secretary of the undergraduate English society, making their rounds of potential speakers for the winter roster, came upon me by chance and asked if I would speak on regional materials which creative writers might exploit. I was then the librarian in the Shortt Collection of Canadiana. In preparation for the talk to be given the following February I began a card file of Western Canadiana titles, and have been collecting titles ever since.

To the regional bibliographer the nineteenth and early twentieth century literature of the Prairie Provinces presents a greater challenge than would the literature of most other geographic areas, since such a high percentage of the publications was ephemeral, printed and distributed outside the region. In the search for these, I have at one time or another visited most of the major research libraries of Canada and the United States. In 1971 a Canada Council grant made possible a 70-day tour of national and other research libraries in seventeen European countries. I searched for immigration literature and for reminiscences published in the homelands of early pioneers. This odyssey was a bibliographical success.

A long-time frustration was the inaccessibility of something described as the 'first document printed in Manitoba'. In 1875 it had been entombed, along with a miscellany of other things, in the corner-stone of the Winnipeg City Hall. Finally the wreckers caught up with the Victorian building, and No. 208 was added to the bibliography.

Since so many of the early pamphlets related to immigration into Western Canada, it was unfortunate for me that the voluminous files of the old Department of the Interior remain closed to public access until they have been inventoried by the archival staff. However, in the nick of time for this bibliography, Miss Juliette Bourque, Librarian of the Public Archives of Canada, arranged to have her staff search the Interior files for Western pamphlets. En route home after a last filing in the Library of Congress, I visited Ottawa and in one day with the help of a strong-armed young archivist along some 300-400 jam-packed archival boxes off shelves, ran an exploratory finger along the letters' edges to feel for hard-edged pamphlets and then tossed the boxes back up on the shelves.

As anticipated, the files were a well-stocked cache of immigration pamphlets.

Among the sources listed in this compilation is one designated 'Tanghe'. This is a card catalogue located in the National Library containing 25,000 entries of publications relating to Canada from Confederation to 1900. The compiler was Miss Madeleine Pellerin who combed many printed national catalogues and other bibliographical sources over several years. Through her searches Miss Pellerin made a significant contribution to retrospective Canadian bibliography.

I regret that the symmetry of the sequential numbering of entries has been marred by the inclusion of about 150 last-minute discoveries to which I was necessary to add the suffix 'A.' This came about by the last minute search of the Department of the Interior files as related above, and to a lesser extent because bibliographers, book dealers, and librarians, on hearing that an enlarged Prairie Provinces bibliography was about to go to press, rushed new titles to the compiler.

Since the bibliography was compiled over many years as a spare-time activity and information was gathered from many sources and in many places, the work is not without inconsistencies in cataloguing and bibliographic styles. Some entries have copied the styles of printed catalogues and bibliographies in which they were found. Two source libraries have changed their names in response to the changing politics of our times but 'R.E.S.' and 'St. Sulpice' have been retained as sources after individual entries. Likewise a few descriptive words and phrases with political overtones are less frequently used in Canada now than twenty years ago. The practical difficulties of making many changes in the text, rather than a bibliographical conservatism, account for the retention of the above features.

As in the original bibliography, the closing date of publication of entries is 1953. However, a minimal attempt at up-dating has been the inclusion at the end of some subject lists of an addendum of some significant post-1953 titles. The choice of titles for inclusion has been highly selective from the increasing number of scholarly regional studies to appear in recent years.

In the preface to the original bibliography I placed in the first rank of those to whom I ac-knowledgeed my indebtedness Miss Juliette Bourque and Mr. T.R. McCloy. Seventeen years later I again have occasion to thank these librarians. As explained earlier, Miss Bourque arranged access to the Department of the Interior archival files. Mr. McCloy, Librarian of the Glenbow Foundation (from which position he has recently retired), as he collected for his library sent me new catalogue entries. Another person who made this edition richer is Mr. Tom Williams, proprietor of Northland Books in Saskatoon (now of Calgary), who brought to my attention obscure pamphlets as these passed through his shop.

The success of my grand tour of European libraries in search of Western Canadiana was greatly aided by preliminary letters in the language of each country, addressed to chief librarians. I am grateful to the eleven members of the University of Alberta library staff who wrote these letters; in one country I was complimented on the purity with which I wrote the vernacular. The European librarians who assisted me, too numerous to name individually, made my excursion successful and pleasant.

With the assistance of the librarians of the leading newspapers in Western Canada the biographical information on several dozen authors in the first edition was enlarged. (One resourceful librarian, unable to find a man in her newspaper's 'morgue,' contacted the provincial Bureau of Vital Statistics and furnished me with an official death certificate.) I wish to thank all these librarians. Miss Ruth Bugey of the Free Press of Winnipeg was, as in the earlier edition, the biographical researcher to whom I am most indebted.

The Historian of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Mr. S.W. Horral, proved that the famous force when put on the trail of an elusive individual can still get its man.

In the University of Alberta Library office I appreciate the various typing services of the secretaries and, in particular, of Mrs. Shirley Meyer and Mrs. Donna Mulholland.

Over the winter of 1971-72 Mr. Milton Pinsky was engaged to organize the enlarged bibliography, a tedious scissors-and-paste job. He made an important contribution to the preparation of this edition, and I thank him for the attention to detail which prevented many errors and inconsistencies.

And finally I acknowledge the work of my wife Margaret whose careful reading of the manuscript has brought to it a higher degree of accuracy.

As the work goes to press I would thank M. Jean Houston, Executive Editor of the University of Toronto Press, who guided the first bibliography, the supplement, and now this enlarged edition through the editorial and printing processes. With great forbearance she incorporated copy from a compiler who continued to send bibliographical corrections and newly discovered titles up to the last possible moment.

This second edition has been published with the help of a grant from the Social Science Research Council of Canada, using funds provided by the Canada Council.

Bruce Peel's preface to the 1963 supplement to the first edition

In the preface to the original bibliography, I wrote with some satisfaction, 'Within the limits here set forth an effort has been made to make the compilation complete. Subsequent to publication I collected from time to time a few fugitive titles, but it was not until July of 1962 that I realized there were enough additional titles to justify publication of a supplement. While in Calgary during Stampede Week I sought refuge from the shouts of the cowhands and the bawling of the steers in the quiet coolness of the Library of the Glenbow Foundation. Here I saw many new pamphlets, strays missed in the earlier round-up.

In this Supplement, Glenbow is the library most frequently cited as location, that so many scarce titles are in a library which has existed so short a time bespeaks diligent searching and a bibliophile's acquisitiveness on the part of Mr. T.R. McCloy, the librarian. Another source was microfilmed correspondence and records of the Church Missionary Society which, while mostly manuscript material, contained a number of little-known pamphlets. On one microfilm reel I was delighted to find a sermon by the Bishop of Rupert's Land printed in Winnipeg in 1868, earlier than any Winnipeg imprint previously known. Later I had the satisfaction of holding a copy of the booklet, owned by an enthusiastic collector of Canadian Prairiana, Mr Nathan Arkin of Winnipeg, a contractor friend had found the booklet on the floor of an old house being demolished for a building project. The Arkin collection, I will be noted in the Supplement, was a happy hunting-ground for the bibliographer.

When I checked the Library of Parliament I located some interesting pamphlets, and I wondered how I had overlooked such an obvious source, then I recalled the Library of Parliament a fire which had made it impossible to examine the holdings of the library in 1953.

The appearance in recent years of printed catalogues of major libraries and special collections has immeasurably assisted bibliographers and research students. When each batch of volumes of the British Museum's Catalogue of Printed Books arrives in our library, I hasten to examine it for Western Canadian items. And titles turn up in unlikely places, why does the Union Theological Seminary in New York own a unique pamphlet published in 1905 which encouraged the building up of treasures on earth by investing in Western Canadian lands?

Last but not least of the sources were the Canadiana book dealers, who over the years in their catalogues have made available and drawn attention to pamphlets which were not in my original bibliography.

I gratefully acknowledge the assistance of librarians and others in suggesting titles for incorporation in the supplement or in supplying other information. Those who suggested titles were Mr. T.R. McCloy and Mr. Hugh Dempsey of the Glenbow Foundation, Mr. H.V. Dempsey of Ottawa, Mr. J.E.A. Macleod, Q.C., of Calgary, Mrs. June Fritch, editor of the Alberta Poetry Year Book, the Rev. Peter T. Ream of Fort Saskatchewan, Mr. Foster M. Palmer, Assistant Reference Librarian of Harvard University Library, and Mr. Guy Lyle, Librarian of Emory University. While Mr. Bernard Antkowiak did not suggest titles directly certainly I am indebted to his catalogues as a source of titles. Others whom I wish to thank for assistance given by letter, or during visits to their libraries, are the following: Miss Marjorie Morley, Provincial Librarian of Manitoba, the Rev. T.C.B. Boon, Honorary Archivist of the Provincial Synod of Rupert's Land, Miss Edythe H. McCausland, University of Toronto Library, Mrs. Ginsberg of the United Church of Canada Archives, Miss Martha Shepard, Dr. Ian Wees, and staff of the National Library of Canada, Miss Dorothy Duke of the Dominion Department of Agriculture Library, and Mr. Darcy Beckstead of the Library of Parliament. Nor must I forget the contribution made by the typists, my secretary, Mrs. Shirley Meyer. Miss Josie Pochrowski, and particularly Mrs. Dorothy Sears, who typed from a difficult scissors-and-paste draft the final copy for the press. And finally I acknowledge the work of my wife whose careful proofreading has eliminated many an inconsistency or error in form and entry.

Foreword to the 1956 first edition

As Director of Agricultural Extension in the University of Saskatchewan some decades ago I realized the importance of becoming better informed concerning the ethnic groups so strongly represented in the stream of immigration then moving from Continental Europe into the prairie region of Western Canada. To my regret that study had to be left to others.

To me, therefore, Bruce Braden Peel's Bibliography of the Prairie Provinces has a particular fascination for even as an index, it pictures kaleidoscopically the occupation and development of a region of great agricultural importance which became in the course of a few decades the new home of a multitude, many of whom had previously been landless people.

Mr. Peel does not undertake to tell the story, but through his bibliography we are directed to a wealth of historical and biographical material of great human interest. To peruse even the chronological listing of titles is to be reminded of countless developments which revealed the virility of the pioneer explorers and settlers and the skill and ability employed in developing the region economically and politically. The journeys of the missionaries are found to be contemporary with those of the fur traders. Educational and institutional services keep pace with permanent settlement. The imagination and resourcefulness employed in the linking together of the Canadian provinces and territories by the pioneer Canadian Pacific Railway, and the provision of transportation services in other areas by its successors, can be sensed by a perusal of the titles.

So recent are these events that many persons are still living who have had a part in the development of self-government in the prairie region, the establishment of municipal and educational institutions, the expansion of religious services and the formation of an admirable judicial system which replaced the early efforts of the Hudson's Bay Company to administer justice and supplemented the later protective services provided by the North West Mounted Police.

This Bibliography is a key to these achievements, and its arrangement of titles chronologically as well as alphabetically adds to its interest and value. It directs us to the personal diaries of the early explorers and traders and to descriptive summaries contained in the works of early historians as well as to source materials which will be valuable to students and writers.

Many septuagenarians who have themselves contributed to prairie development may find pleasure in the use of this Bibliography; but those who will benefit most from it are newcomers to the prairie region and younger people of this and later generations who may feel an urge to enrich their minds with a knowledge of the early development of Captain Butler's 'Great Lone Land' or to present their individual interpretation of the events which belong to its early history.

In this publication Mr. Peel has abundantly earned our gratitude for having completed an ambitious and scholarly undertaking which a growing number of students and scholars will find indispensable.

Bruce Peel's preface to the 1956 first edition

The compilation of this regional bibliography was begun in 1946. The nucleus for a bibliography of the Prairie Provinces was to be found on the shelves of the Shortt Collection of Canadiana in the University of Saskatchewan Library: which collection I was at that time engaged in cataloguing. While searching for titles, I have at one time or another visited all the larger libraries in Western Canada, libraries in Ottawa, Montreal, and Toronto, and, in the United States, the New York Public Library and the Library of Congress in Washington. An important collection not examined was the Icelandic collection in the University of Manitoba Library. Printed catalogues of libraries such as that of the Royal Empire Society, and, in particular, catalogues of Canadiana collections yielded additional books and pamphlets. Numerous books and bibliographies were also checked for Western Canadian items. In the case of the latter sources I am reasonably sure that items included exist substantially as described. An exception, however, is the inclusion of some half dozen titles about whose existence in book or pamphlet form I am not completely convinced, by listing them and giving sources I have alerted interested students.

The scope of this bibliography is books and pamphlets relating to the Prairie Provinces. Towards titles relating to border areas restraint was exercised, since to have included certain of these would have involved the bibliographer with other titles whose content spread even further into the Rocky Mountains, the Arctic, Hudson Bay, and the Precambrian Shield east of Manitoba. The emphasis in the bibliography is centrical, directed towards the prairie region, that agricultural arc resting on the international boundary.

A more difficult decision for the regional bibliographer had to do with books relating to Canada and containing material on the prairies. There are significant studies of national agriculture, marketing, economics, transportation, and politics which the student of the prairie region cannot ignore. Had these been included the bibliography would have had no limits. Accounts by early explorers en route to the Arctic or Pacific are, however, included, although only a small section of each might relate to the prairies; they contribute to our limited information on the period. Likewise, books by early transcontinental tourists are listed since most of them gave special emphasis to the agricultural possibilities of the region and doubtlessly influenced settlement pamphlets on the Canadian Pacific Railway during the period when it was being built have been included since it played such an important part in the opening of the West, but most books about the railway after it became established as a national institution have been excluded.

The hundreds of technical bulletins relating to prairie agriculture would, had they been included, have swamped the compilation. Students can find these bulletins listed in the Agricultural Index. The attention of students interested in the economic or social conditions of agricultural communities must be directed to the excellent regional surveys made by the regional branches of the Economic Division of the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

British blue books relating to the Prairie Provinces have been listed, as have also early Canadian Sessional Papers, undoubtedly the best source of information on the West for the period of settlement, no student of the period can ignore the annual reports of the Departments of the Interior and Indian Affairs, or those of the Commissioner of the North West Mounted Police. The publications of the governments of the three Prairie Provinces are excluded (with a few exceptions) because of their mass policy. There is a ready available check list, compiled by Miss Christine MacDonald, of publications of the Province of Saskatchewan and of the earlier North West Territories government.

In the field of literature the original plan was to include all the works of prairie writers, but because of the recency of settlement and the mobility of the writers, I found it impossible to define prairie writers. Some writers are expatriates who write of the lands from which they came. Writers of certain racial groups and religious sects, conscious of the rapid assimilation of their young people, set their fiction or drama in the ancestral homeland, pointing to their cultural heritage; there are novels and plays about German colonies in southern Russia, and novels, plays, and poems about the Ukraine. Another group of writers are the half-dozen English yarn-spinners who in their adventurous youth lived in Western Canada and later used the region as the locale for their stories. The first of these was R.M. Ballantyne, the most prolific, Harold Bindloss. Regarding fiction, my final decision was that the sole criterion should be whether or not a work had a prairie locale. Thus, not all the writings of a prairie author are necessarily listed. The fact that such writers of international stature as Rudyard Kipling, Somerset Maugham, Maura O'Neill, Maurice Constantine-Weyer, and Sinclair Lewis are listed emphasizes the interest in the 'last best West' during the early years of the twentieth century.

A decision on poetry was more difficult. An attempt has been made to include that poetry which describes the prairie region, or poetry whose creator was unquestionably influenced by the prairie environment. Thus, a poet who was a child of the prairie would have his works included even if he wrote about the moon, but more selectivity was exercised in choosing works by poets who came to the region after they had reached adult estate. This latter policy is exemplified in the choice of Icelandic poetry.

I have tried to collect the writings published in languages other than English, of the many racial groups who settled on the prairies. First were the Indians, I have included translations of the Bible and religious works into Indian dialects because the work of translating was part of the early missionary endeavour and because these works are often little known and not infrequently rare. The user will notice the absence of some works relating to the Athapascan tribes which might rightfully claim a place in the bibliography, but to have included them would have involved as well the writings relating to all the tribes in the Mackenzie drainage basin as far as Aklatik. A significant feature of the writings in French is that so many of them were written by Old Country Frenchmen, the majority of whom were missionaries of the Oblate Order. To the items in French might have been added all the Canadian Sessional Papers, as these were printed in French as well as English.

Works by prairie writers on non-prairie topics have been regarded as outside the scope of this bibliography. Their inclusion would have involved, among other types of material, a shoal of school books from primers to arithmetic texts. Scholarly studies have been omitted. To indicate their significance and number, one has only to mention a few of the publications of persons associated with the University of Saskatchewan alone: R. Altachuk's Select Studies on Arteriosclerosis, V.C. Fowke's Canadian Agricultural Policy, H. Healy's So Little for the Mind, M. Tumin's Keynesian Economics, N. Ward's Canadian House of Commons, R.A. Wilson's Birth of Language and Legal Essays in Honour of Arthur Moyn.

Local imprints have been excluded as such. Little publishing is done in Western Canada with the exception of school texts, and writings in Ukrainian and Icelandic. Winnipeg is one of the important publishing centres of Ukrainian literature outside the Iron Curtain countries. Many of the publications relate to the question of the autonomy of the Ukraine or are reissues of the works of Old Country poets and writers. Winnipeg is also an important publishing centre of Icelandic.

Serial publications have in general been excluded, but exceptions have been made for a few significant works. In fact, exceptions may have been made in any category.

Within the limits here set forth an effort has been made to make the compilation complete. The largest number of fugitive items is probably in the fields of immigration pamphlets and privately printed verse.

The arrangement of the bibliography is chronological, with fur-trade journals placed in their historical period rather than listed by date of publication. In this chronological arrangement a small number of entries are not in strict order, these are items which were arranged before the publication date — or the correct author entry — was known, and when this missing information was subsequently established it was too late to rearrange in the numerical sequence.

For each entry full bibliographical details are given where the book has been examined, and as full as possible when the information was taken from other bibliographical sources. In a work compiled from many sources it will be appreciated that some inconsistency is inevitable. In the author entry, that portion of the name which does not appear on the title page of a book has been enclosed in square brackets. In the matter of editions, the entries are usually for first editions with references to later editions and translations. For a few titles my information for a later edition was more complete, so I have chosen to give bibliographical details of that edition. My notes about editions are not always complete, particularly for twentieth-century titles, it is often difficult to ascertain that a work published in Toronto, New York, or London was also published in one or both of the other centres by the same or another publisher.

The second section of the bibliography is a subject index, with the subjects arranged in broad groups and the authors arranged chronologically under each subject. The chronological arrangement under subject is intended to enable the scholar to see the development of the literature in that field.

The biographical notes contained in the author index are intended to identify the authors whose works appear in the bibliography, and to show their association with the West or with the topics of their books. With this in mind, the emphasis has been strictly regional. Where biographical information is readily available in standard reference works, the reader has been referred to those sources. Thus, persons of significance in the national life of Canada have in many cases been dismissed with a phrase, while obscure Westerners have been treated at some length. Because of the difficulty of obtaining biographical information about some authors, their sketches are little more than clues which the interested student may follow up. Because of this difficulty and because of the regional emphasis, the sketches are uneven. The biographical material contained in the author index is essentially a by-product of the bibliographical research.

Since the Shortt Collection of Canadiana is so frequently given as the location of items, a descriptive note is in order. The collection was originally the personal library of Adam Shortt, long associated with Queen's University, and later with the Dominion government as Civil Service Commissioner and as an archivist. As a collector Dr. Shortt was in the enviable position of being personally acquainted with contemporaries who made and wrote Canadian history and with the families of Canadians prominent in an earlier generation. Through the foresight of Dr. W.C. Murray, first President of the University of Saskatchewan, and Dr. A.S. Morton, Librarian, this collection was purchased for the library of the University of Saskatchewan in 1918. However, the Western Canadian volumes now in the collection are mostly from the Prairie Provinces collection built up by Dr. Morton, who was an authority on the West in the fur-trade era. Many of the western ephemera were collected by Dr. Murray and Dr. E. H. Oliver—then professor of history at the University—while they were going about the province on official business. This collection owes much to the selective purchases made over the years by Dr. Jean Murray, professor of history. Miss Barbara Hobbs (now Mrs. Harcourt Smith) while in charge of the collection from 1951 to 1955 showed ingenuity in locating and adding scarce prairie items.

The assistance and co-operation I received from the many librarians and archivists whose libraries I visited is gratefully acknowledged. I wish to mention in particular the late Dr. J. L. Johnston, Legislative Librarian of Manitoba, Miss Juliette Bourque and Mr. T. R. McCloy of the Public Archives of Canada, and Dr. Wilford Ireland and Miss Inez Mitchell of the Archives of British Columbia. My attention was directed to a number of items by Miss Edith Hilton of the Legislative Library of Alberta and Mr. Hugh Dempsey of the Alberta Department of Economic Affairs. Mr. Bohdan Kazymyva of the Ukrainian press suggested a score of Ukrainian titles and supplied me with biographical material for several Ukrainian writers. Of the librarians to whom I wrote for information I am especially grateful to the following for research on my behalf: Miss Georgina Thomson of Calgary, Mrs. I. C. Kilien of Lloydminster, Miss Betty Carme of Regina, Miss Ruth Bugey of the Winnipeg Free Press Library, Miss Elizabeth Dufoe and Mrs. Sigurbjornsson of the University of Manitoba, Miss Margaret Ray of Victoria University Library in Toronto, Miss Martha Shepard of the National Library, Dr. D. C. Harvey of the Public Archives of Nova Scotia, Dr. Grace Lee Nute of the Minnesota Historical Society, Miss Ruth L. Butler of the Newberry Library in Chicago, Mr. R. D. Rogers of the New York Public Library, Mr. R. A. Wilson of the British Museum, and Mr. J. Packman of the Royal Empire Society Library in London. Dr. Carlyle King and Professor E. A. McCourt of the University of Saskatchewan, and Dr. Paul Yuzik of the University of Manitoba, very kindly answered last-minute appeals from me. Inspector C. H. Bayfield, Headquarters Staff, Royal Canadian Mounted Police, tracked down some data on early members of the famous force.

Special thanks must go to Miss Christine MacDonald of the Legislative Library of Saskatchewan, and to Miss Barbara Hobbs, Librarian of the Shortt Collection of Canadiana, who cheerfully answered my many requests for information, bibliographic and biographic. To Dr. W. Kaye Lamb and Dr. Jean Lunn of the National Library, Mr. David C. Appert of the University of Saskatchewan Library, and Mr. Bernard Amtmann, Canadiana dealer of Montreal, for examining the manuscript while in preparation and offering suggestions, I acknowledge my indebtedness.

Miss Marjorie Sherlock (now Mrs. H. Grayson Smith) while Librarian of the Rutherford Library, University of Alberta, kindly granted time and library facilities for the completion of the manuscript. Miss Caroline B. Hicks, Chief Cataloguer, must also be thanked. And special mention must be made of the contribution of Margaret, my wife, who spent countless hours checking the copy.

I wish also to record my indebtedness to Miss M. Jean Houston, Assistant Editor of the University of Toronto Press, who guided a difficult manuscript through the press.

Dr. Lewis H. Thomas, Archivist of Saskatchewan, Dr. Geo. W. Simpson, Chairman of the Department of History, University of Saskatchewan, and Mr. John H. Archer, Legislative Librarian of Saskatchewan, by their interest in this compilation have assured its publication. I express my deep gratitude. The Canadian Social Science Research Council made a grant-in-aid in 1949 to assist in the preparation of the manuscript, and publication was made possible by the financial assistance of the University of Saskatchewan, the Saskatchewan Golden Jubilee Committee, and the Publications Fund of the University of Toronto Press.

Finally, I wish to express my sincerest appreciation to Dr. F. H. Auld, Chancellor of the University of Saskatchewan, for the foreword in which he has caught the spirit of what I have hoped to accomplish.

Biography of Bruce Peel

Bruce Braden Peel was born on November 11, 1916, the first of three children. His parents, William Peel and Alice Switzer, farmed a homestead near Perlman in southern Saskatchewan, close to the international border. When he was eight, his father died, leaving him and his two sisters, Doreen and Wilma, to be raised by their mother. The farmland itself was leased and the resulting revenue, along with the sale of the equipment and most of the farmstock, raised sufficient money to secure the family from want. Moreover, his maternal uncle, James Switzer, owned a prosperous farmstead nearby. But despite the proximity of family and neighbours, a sense of loneliness pervaded prairie homesteads in the 1920s and 1930s which even the advent of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation could not wholly dispel.

Reaching manhood in the years of the Great Depression, Peel spent a year in 1936–1937 earning a teacher's credential at the Norma School in Moose Jaw. This was a reliable choice to guarantee a career, or at least a job to fall back on in those hard times. In 1937 he began teaching school in rural Saskatchewan, and later in Saskatoon, but he had higher ambitions, which required further education. However, the combination of the Depression and the outbreak of war entailed further delay. Unfitted for military service by the condition of his eyes, he nonetheless volunteered to serve and wound up painting ships at the Lakehead. After that interlude, he returned to Saskatchewan, where he took a bachelor's degree in 1944, and a master's in 1946. Then, encouraged by Professor Simpson of the History Department, he earned a library degree at the University of Toronto.

In 1948 he met Margaret Fullerton; in 1950 they were married, and the following year they moved to Edmonton when he was appointed Chief Cataloguer in the University of Alberta Library. In 1954, one year prior to his appointment as "Librarian to the University of Alberta." Peel was invited by Robert Fackburn, Chief Librarian of the University of Toronto, to become his associate, an offer which he politely declined. He also received and refused offers from such places as McGill and the University of Western Ontario. Margaret Peel believes he resisted all these tempting offers because of his unwillingness to leave his beloved prairies.

Had Bruce Peel done nothing more than pursue his career as a library administrator, he would be remembered with awe and no little envy. Awe at his achievements, and envy at the timing of his career, which coincided with an era of unprecedented growth in universities and their libraries. His most obvious achievement as an administrator was to guide the growth of the University of Alberta's library from a very modest size to its present rank, as one of Canada's three largest research institutions. Indeed, as a library planner and builder he was responsible for developing six library facilities (including the Cameron and Rutherford libraries), as well as the development of the original library collection at the University of Calgary, which began as a branch of the University of Alberta.

He served on many library committees and boards, and as an advisor on the design of library buildings ranging from Hay River in the Northwest Territories to Iran in the Middle East. As a member of the seminal Commission on Canadian Studies, chaired by Professor Tom Symons of Trent University, he drafted documents on the role of libraries in supporting Canadian Studies, and on the need for a national microfilming project. This presaged the creation of the Canadian Institute for Historical Microreproductions (CIHM), on whose Board of Directors he also served. For many years this work, as well as the need to recruit new librarians, provided him with a congenial excuse for travel while also highlighting the need for a library faculty to provide for the prairie region. Thus, he campaigned for the creation of the University of Alberta's Library School. In addition, he developed a strong interest in scholarly publishing. In the words of Norma Gutteridge, a former director of the University of Alberta Press, "Mr Peel was an early supporter of the establishment of a University Press, and did a great deal to foster its development once it had come into existence. It is doubtful if the Press would have grown and prospered as it did without his encouragement and work behind the scenes."

Bruce Peel's library career was rich in service not only to his own institution, but also to the profession at large. That service led to such honours as the presidencies of the Library Association of Alberta (LAA), and the Canadian Library Association (CLA). In 1982, the year of his retirement, he was honoured with the Canadian Library Association's Award for Outstanding Service to Librarianship. More than merely a very successful librarian, Bruce Peel was a man of numerous and varied interests and activities. Placed in charge of the Dr Adam Shortt Collection of Canadiana, which the University of Saskatchewan had acquired in 1918, and continued to build over the subsequent decades, Bruce Peel undertook to provide it with a comprehensive catalogue. When the undergraduate English Society invited him to speak about the collection as a regional resource for creative writers, he began preparing a card file of western Canadian titles. His subsequent decision to produce a published bibliography that focused on the Prairie Provinces was, he once confessed, one he would never have undertaken, if he had known what he was getting into.

That was the beginning of a lifetime devoted to tracking down and collecting bibliographic references. The project that he confidently expected to take no more than a year, took ten years before the publication of A bibliography of the Prairie Provinces in 1956. The publication of a bibliography invariably flashes out other titles, and by 1963, a 130-page supplement was needed to record 475 new entries, along with addenda and corrigenda to the first edition. A cumulative second edition appeared in 1973. Peel's other interests resulted in a lengthy stream of historical, biographical, bibliographical, genealogical, and journalistic publications. In his phenomenally productive spare time, he studied heraldry and philately, and assembled significant collections of postage stamps and bookplates. The subjects of his publications are wide and varied, and while they deal primarily with Canadian topics, and particularly with the early settlement and publishing history of western Canada, they also include a sketch of the Byzantine Patriarch Photius (fl. 858–890) and a study of Christopher Columbus' house and library.

Peel's historical and bibliographical studies were always based upon solid research, but were rendered with a popular flair and a desire to appeal to the lay reader. Perhaps the best known and certainly the most entertaining of these is his 1972 book Steamboats on the Saskatchewan, which began life as the script for a television documentary. Based on research in old newspaper files and the archives of the Hudson's Bay Company, it recounts the peripatetic history of riverboat navigation westward from Grand Rapids on Lake Winnipeg, along both the north and south branches of the Saskatchewan River and features such colourful figures as Captain John Segers. After piloting sternwheelers on the Mississippi, the Yukon, and the Nile, where he participated in the Gordon Relief Expedition (1884–1885), Segers ended his career in Nome, Alaska, in 1903, when a tidal wave deposited his last command high and dry on top of a warehouse.

It is, however, for A bibliography of the Prairie Provinces, and his many other publications on the history of early western Canadian printing and immigrants, that Bruce Peel is best known as a scholar, and upon which his reputation among both bibliographers and historians rests. He often demonstrated that mixture of perseverance and pertinacity that marks the best scholars as well as bibliographers. While preparing the first edition, he was frustrated to find that something called "the first document printed in Manitoba" had never been described, but was inaccessible since it had been entombed within the cornerstone of Winnipeg's town hall, in 1875. With the passage of another 15 years, however, urban renewal came to the rescue in the form of a wrecker's ball. On February 17, 1962, with the aid of "two screwdrivers, three cold chisels, two hammers, four aldermen, and a mayor," the old City Hall's time capsule was opened, and disgorged, among other things, a 34-line broadside of 1859 entitled A few reasons for a Crown Colony. This long sought item became entry #208 in the second edition, and it also enabled him to complete his monograph on Early printing in the Red River Settlement, 1859–1870, and its effect upon the Riel Rebellion (1974).

A refusal to take no for an answer, or to settle for half a loaf, was another of Peel's traits as a bibliographer. He had been denied access to the still uncatalogued files of the old Department of the Interior while compiling his first edition, but later, as the second edition was almost ready for the Press, he persuaded the Librarian of the Public Archives of Canada (as it was then styled) to allow him access in search of immigration pamphlets. On at least one occasion, the bibliographer's instincts trumped those of the library director David Gos, of The Provincial Museum of Alberta, recalled how he obtained a borrower's card at a time when access was much more tightly controlled than it is now. After being rebuffed by the University Library's line managers, he approached Bruce Peel and introduced him to two Russian language books dealing with the history of the Doukhobors in Canada that were "Not in Peel." Peel was, of course, delighted, and when Gos added that he had a serious need for borrowing privileges, Peel replied "Well, of course you do," and they were granted.

Bruce Peel's contributions outside the Library also brought him numerous honours, including election to the presidency of both the Alberta Historical Society and the Bibliographical Society of Canada. The former body also awarded him its Scroll for Outstanding Contributions to Alberta History, while the latter organization awarded him the Marie Tremaine Medal for Outstanding Contributions to Canadian Bibliography. At various times he was also the recipient of the Queen Elizabeth Silver Jubilee Medal, and the Golden Cross of Merit from the Polish Government in Exile, for his contributions to, and support of, Slavic bibliography.

During the last decade of his life Bruce Peel maintained an office in the University Library, and employed discarded catalogue cards, on which he recorded details of each newly discovered item "Not in Peel" – persona, computers were a mystery he chose not to explore. As the number of new entries grew, he contemplated issuing a supplement to the second edition of the prairie bibliography, as he had done with the first edition. By 1990, however, the number had grown to be quite substantial, and he was informed by his publisher the University of Toronto Press, that inasmuch as stocks of the second edition were all but exhausted, they desired a fully cumulated third edition. However, the work on the third edition progressed slowly, and the onset of Parkinson's gradually brought progress to a halt.

The end came on November 30, 1998, and four days later, he was carried to his last resting place, on a flat stretch of open ground just east of Edmonton, a gravesite chosen for its close resemblance to the prairies he loved and did so much to celebrate. In the fields of Canadian librarianship and bibliography, Bruce Peel looms as something of a giant, responsible on the one hand for building libraries and the library profession in Canada, and on the other for producing bibliographies which helped define and record Canadiana long before Canadian Studies came into fashion. Bruce Peel spent a lifetime producing, collecting, organizing, and describing the printed word in Canada.

Note to the reader:

Bibliographic entries are arranged chronologically by the "date of activity" of the publications, contents, that is, of the people and events discussed or described. Thus, speeches about Louis Riel's execution are classed together in 1885, regardless of their date of publication. Travel accounts, histories, and biographies are generally classed by their terminal dates of activity. Ongoing serials are generally classed by the year of first publication. When no contextual date is obvious, titles are listed under their date of publication. Readers will therefore find the indexes indispensable for locating specific works.

Debbe, Arthur

An account of the countries adjoining to Hudson's Bay, in the north-west part of America: Containing a description of their lakes and rivers, the nature of the soil and climates, and their methods of commerce &c. shewing the benefit to be made by settling colonies, and opening a trade in these parts. Whereby the French will be deprived in a great measure of their traffick in furs, and the communication between Canada and Mississippi be cut off. With an abstract of Captain Middleton's journal, and observations upon his behaviour during his voyage, and since his return. To which are added: I. A letter from Bartholomew de Ruine, Vice-Admiral of Peru and Mexico, Citing an account of his voyage from Lima in Peru, to prevent or seize upon any ships that should attempt to find a North West passage to the South Sea. II. An abstract of all the discoveries which have been published of the islands and countries in and adjoining to the great western ocean between America, India and China, &c. pointing out the advantages that may be made, if a short passage should be found thro' Hudson's Strait to that ocean. III. The Hudson's Bay Company's charter. IV. The standard of trade in those parts of America, with an account of the exports and profits made annually by the Hudson's Bay Company. V. Vocabularies of the languages of several Indian nations adjoining to Hudson's Bay. The whole intended to show the great probability of a North-West passage so long desired, and which (if discovered) would be of the highest advantage to these Kingdoms. London: Printed for J. Robinson, 1744. 111. 1 leaf. 211p. fold map. 26 x 21.5cm.

Describes an attack on the HBC which led to the investigation of the monopoly by a Parliamentary committee in 1740. Debbé's information was largely based on French publications and Canadian sources, particularly that of Métis trader Joseph La France. Also published, East Anglia, Yorkshire, England: S.R. Publishers and New York: Johnson Reprint, 1967 (c. 2.1p. Text no. 2.0. 1970 211p.).

Shewing from these journals, a probability that there is a passage from thence to the western ocean of America. London: Printed for J. Robinson, 1746H. 24p., fold map. 28cm.

Also published: Dublin: s.n., 1746 (179.). Pamphlet to strongly support Dobbs' viewpoint. It has been attributed to Dobbs.

An account of six years residence in Hudson's Bay, from 1733 to 1736, and 1744 to 1747: Containing a variety of facts, observations, and discoveries tending to show, I. The vast importance of the countries about Hudson's Bay to Great-Britain, on account of the extensive improvements that may be made there in many beneficial articles of commerce: particularly in the fur and in the whale and seal fisheries, and II. The interested views of the Hudson's Bay Company, and the absolute necessity of opening the trade, and making it the object of national encouragement as the only method of keeping it out of the hands of the French. To which is added an appendix containing I. A short history of the discovery of Hudson's Bay, and of the proceedings of the English there since the grant of the Hudson's Bay charter. Together with remarks upon the papers and evidence produced by that company before the committee of the Honourable House of Commons, in the year 1749: II. An estimate of the expence [sic] of building the stone fort, called Prince of Wales's fort, at the entrance of Churchill-river. III. The soundings of Nelson-river. IV. A survey of the course of Nelson-river. V. A survey of Seal and Gillam's islands. And VI. A journal of the winds and tides at Churchill-river, for part of the years 1746 and 1747: The whole illustrated, by a draught of Nelson and Hayes's Rivers; a draught of Churchill-river, and plans of York-fort and Prince of Wales's fort. Pond, Peter, John Macdonell, Archibald Norman McLeod, Hugh Farles, and Thomas Connor

Five fur traders of the Northwest: Being the narrative of Peter Pond and the diaries of John Macdonell, Archibald N. McLeod, Hugh Farles, and Thomas Connor. Charles Marvin Gates, ed. and Grace Lee Nute, introduction. 1st edition. Minneapolis, Minn.: Published for the Minnesota State Society of the Colonial Dames of America. University of Minnesota Press, 1953. v, 2 leaves, 3-298p., maps. 22cm.

Also published. 2nd edition, revised and enlarged, with foreword by Theodore C. Bridges, St. Paul: Minnesota Historical Society, 1965 and 1971. (ii, 296p.). Pond's narrative had appeared in print but the diaries were published here for the first time. Macdonell's diary describes a trip from Montreal to a post on the upper Assiniboine River in 1793. MacLeod's diary is a description of the events of 1800-1801 at Fort Alexandria on the Assiniboine. Farles was stationed at Fort Lac du Fort in 1804-1805, and Connor at Lake St. Croix at the same time.

Eight letters on the subject of the Earl of Selkirk's pamphlet on Highland emigration. As they lately appeared under the signature of Amicus on one of the Edinburgh newspapers. 1st edition. Edinburgh. Printed for John Anderson, 1806. 55, [1]p. 22cm.

Letters addressed to editor of Edinburgh Herald and Chronicle. Also published. London. Harp. Rees and Orme (59 [1 p.]. 2nd edition, with supplementary remarks. Edinburgh. Printed for John Anderson and Longman: Hurst, Rees and Orme, London. by Neill and Co. 1806. vii, 1 [5]. 136p.

Farber, John N. (pseud.)

Remarks on the Earl of Selkirk's observations on the present state of the Highlands of Scotland. With a view of the causes and probable consequences of emigration. Edinburgh, Scotland: Printed for John Anderson and Longman: Hurst, Rees, & Orme, London. 1806. [2. 353p. 21. 5cm.

This has long been considered to be a 2nd edition. What has been thought to be the 1st edition is Strictures and remarks on the present state of the Highlands of Scotland, with a view of the causes and probable consequences of emigration. Edinburgh. Printed by Abernethy and Walker, and sold by John Fairbairn, Edinburgh, and J. Murray, London. 1806 (136p.). However, J.M. Burdett, in The People's Chronicle, Highland emigration to British North America, 1770-1875 (Winnipeg: University of Manitoba Press, 1982), maintains this work is not an enlarged edition of Strictures and remarks but that Strictures was written by Robert Brown, of inverness while Remarks was written by Robert Brown (1757-1847), two separate people. For what prevailed, his response see Peel 67.

Thompson, David, Alexander Henry (younger), and John Pritchard

Souris River posts and David Thompson's diary of his historical trip across the Souris plains to the Mandan villages in the winter of 1797-98. Gordon Alexander McClellan, editor. Souris, Man. Souris Plaindealer, 1952. [4]. 5-43p., double map. 23cm.

Text in double columns. Includes "Brief biographies of early explorers" (pages 19-25) plus extracts from diaries of Thompson (27-30) and Henry (31-37), and a letter by John Pritchard (38-

43). "The paper 'Souris River Posts,' was read by the writer at a meeting of the Manitoba Historical and Scientific Society, and was included in its annual report of 1930. It later was published in serial form in the Souris Plaindealer, together with portions of the David Thompson and Alexander Henry (the Younger) diaries, written from day to day as they wandered the Souris plains, also other interesting material of the fur trading days. This booklet is published in order to preserve in compact form a great deal of what is at present known of the early fur trading period on the Souris river" (foreword).

Acheson, Nathaniel or John Henry

On the origin and progress of the North-West Company of Canada. With a history of the fur trade, as connected with that concern, and observations on the political importance of the company's intercourse with, and influence over the Indians or savage nations of the interior, and on the necessity of maintaining and supporting the system from which that influence arises, and by which only it can be preserved. London. Printed by Cox, Son, & Baylis. 1811. 35p. map. 23cm.

The copy in the Toronto Public Reference Library has manuscript note: "By Nathaniel Acheson" written under the title, but Wallace, in Documents relating to the North West Company, attributes it to John Henry. The pamphlet was written to further the efforts of the NWC to obtain a charter for exclusive trade on the Pacific coast.

Le Halpe

Diary of a trip from Montreal to Lake Athabasca in 1811. Paris: s.n., 1813. 142p.

"A private collector of Canadiana visited my office about 1967 and described a rare volume which he said he possessed. In Paris he had picked up a French book depicting a journey with the Nor'West fur brigade taken by a Frenchman in 1811. It was my intention to verify this entry some time when in my informant's city by arranging to see the book. Finally I made enquiries and learned that the collector had died unexpectedly and his collection had been dispersed. The discovery and verification of this book remains a challenge" (Bruce Peel). A library work was not in the online catalogue at the Bibliothèque nationale de France, or any other major institution.

Harrison, Daniel Williams

A journal of voyages and sojourns in the interior of North America, between the 47th and 58th degrees of north latitude, extending from Montreal nearly to the Pacific Ocean: a distance of about 5000 miles. Including an account of the principal occurrences [sic] during a residence of nearly nineteen years in different parts of that country. To which are added a concise description of the face of the country, its inhabitants, their manners, customs, laws, religion, etc., and considerable specimens of the 110 languages most extensively spoken. Together with an account of the principal animals to be found in the forests and prairies of this extensive region. Daniel Haskel, editor. 1st edition. Andover, Mass.: Andover Press, 1820. xxv, [1-1] [251-432p. port., fold. map. 20.5cm.

Andover Press was founded in 1813. Timothy Flagg and Abraham J. Gould operated the Press from 1813 to 1832. Also published: New York: A. S. Barnes & Co., 1963 (xxiii, 352p., Toronto: G. H. Morang & Co. 1904 (xxiii, 352p., New York: Allerton Book Co., 1905 (xxii, 352p. with introduction by William Lawson Groat, Toronto: Courier Press, 1913 (xxiii, 382p.); New York: Allerton Book Co., 1922 (xxiii, 382p., New York: AMS Press, 1973 (xxiii, 382p.). Harrison spent about ten years in what are today the Prairie Provinces. Haskel described his role in the book: "The following work was furnished to my hand fully written out, and though I have written it wholly over, I should have been much better able to satisfy myself with respect to its style, if I could so fully have possessed the materials in the form of notes and sketches, or by verbal details" (x-xi). In addition to altering the narrative, Haskel introduced moral and religious content consistent with his own position. Harmon's account ends on page 275. What follows was probably written by Haskel: "Character of the Canadian voyageurs" (pages 275-277), "An account of the Indians on the east side of the Rocky Mountain" (311-183), "A specimen of the Cree or Kikojemina tongue" (435-441), "A specimen of the Taculiy or Cassier tongue" (443-463), "A concise account of the principal animals which are found in the north western part of North America" (443-447). Also published with an introduction by Louise Erdreich, as The Indian: A narrative of the captivity and adventures of John Tanner. New York: Penguin Books, 1994 and 2000 xv, 280p.; See also Peel 172 and 173. Tanner spent part of his* life in the Red River country and along the Assiniboine. Tanner also assisted Edwin Jantzen in 1886 identification of what is described as the earliest complete New Testament in Chippewa (1882). The narrative contains much information on the HBC, NWAC, and Selkirk Settlement. Ellison Coates, by checking Tanner against Henry's journal (see Peel 43), has been able to supply dates lacking in the narrative. Part I, prepared by James, contains information on Native ways, languages, plants, and animals.

Carmichael-Smyth, Robert Stewart

The employment of the people and the capital of Great Britain in her own colonies, at the same time assisting emigration and penal arrangements by undertaking a great national work and thus opening the shortest road to the most extensive regions of wealth ever before at the command of any nation in the world (not regions of gold, but for commerce and industry), so that at no future period (within at least the imagination of man) will Great Britain have to complain either of too great a population on her soil, or too small a market for her labour. All this fully explained in a letter from Major Robert Carmichael-Smyth to his friend the author of The Clockmaker, containing thoughts on the subject of a British colonial railway communication between the Atlantic and the Pacific from the magnificent harbour of Halifax, in Nova Scotia (north-western America) to the mouth of the Fraser's River, in New Caledonia (north-western America), or such other port as may be determined upon. London: W.P. Mercham, 1849 viii, 68p. sold. map. 21.5cm.

Hudson's Bay Company (Red River Settlement): Return to an address of the House of Commons dated 9 February 1849 for copies of any memorials presented to the Colonial Office by inhabitants of the Red River Settlement, complaining of the government of the Hudson's Bay Company. Of the instructions given to the Governor-General of Canada for the investigation of those complaints. Of the reports of the officers appointed by Lord Elgin, or by the Colonial Office for the purposes of such investigation. And of any correspondence which has passed between the Colonial Office and the Hudson's Bay Company and the inhabitants of the Red River Settlement respectively upon the subject of the above memorial. [London: Queen's Printer, 1849 iv, 115p. 34cm. ([Parliament, 1849 House of Commons Reports and Papers]. 227)

Burning title: "Correspondence relative to complaints of the inhabitants of the Red River Settlement." As it became possible to trade with American settlements to the south, dissatisfaction with the monopoly increased at Red River. In 1847, a petition to Queen Victoria was drafted and sent to England, where Alexander Kennedy Isbister forwarded it to the Colonial Secretary. This paper contains evidence, etc. compiled by Isbister.

Hudson's Bay Company and James Hargrave
Private instructions for the Company's agents. London: Hudson's Bay Co., 1858]. 3p. 33cm

At head of title: "Hudson's Bay Company." Dated: "Hudson's Bay House, London, November 22, 1858." Signed: "Thomas Pearce, Secretary." While Pearce signed it, there are extensive quotations from Hargrave on the matter of allowances and rations at York Factory, as well as at other stations. The note which provoked the documents: "...the Company are aware that of late, complaints have been raised that in those stations some luxuries are omitted which, though used by the aboriginal classes in modern times, were not thought necessary at the period when the scale of rations was originally arranged. The Committee are anxious to conform to the change, and they have consequently included Tea and Sugar among the rations to be supplied to all classes of Servants, at the same time, that the option will be given to such as may choose to dispense with those articles to get an equivalent for the whole, or for a part, in money."

Corbett, Griffith Owen

A few reasons for a Crown Colony. [Red River, NWT] Headingley Press, 1859. Broadside: 34 lines. Type-page. 35 x 14cm.

Eight reasons are enumerated by Corbett. Its author and amateur printer. The hand-press used has not been positively identified, but would seem to have been one brought to Fort Garry for missionary purposes. In 1875 this "first imprint" in the Red River Settlement was enshrined with a miscellany of documents and other artifacts in the cornerstone of Winnipeg's city hall. When it was demolished the broadside was given into the custody of the Winnipeg City Clerk's office. For various versions of this bibliographic tale see Peel's introduction to the Bibliographical Society of Canada's reprint of Peel 479 (pages 6-7) and Peel's Early printing in the Red River Settlement, 1859-1870 (pages [r], 1-3). Facsimile of broadside is included in both sources.

John Connolly, plaintiff vs. Julia Woolrich, defendants and Thomas R. Johnson, et al., executors and defendants per reprise d'instance. Montreal: Printed by the Montreal Printing & Publishing Co., [1867]. 86, [2]p. 22cm.

At head of title: "Superior court. Montreal. No. 902." John Connolly was the son of chief trader William Connolly (c. 1786-1849) and Suzanne, daughter of a Cree chief. They were married in 1803, according to the "custom of the country." In 1832, after six children together, William sent Suzanne to a convent in the Red River Settlement so he could marry his second cousin, Julia Woolrich. When William died he left all his property to Julia and his two children with her. After Suzanne's death in 1862, John, the eldest of the six children, sued Julia Woolrich for a "sixth portion of one half of the estate in defendant's possession." The Quebec Superior Court ruling in 1867 that the Cree marriage was valid was the first time Canadian courts recognized "custom" marriages as legal and the children of those marriages as "legitimate." - On two pages. Is this a proof intended to have been issued as a single sheet? The date May 14, 1870 has been provisionally assigned to this broadside in two pieces. Alexander Begg, the observant diarist, does not mention it, and it is probable that the document is a draft which was never issued. It is a statement of the position of the French-speaking inhabitants of the Red River Settlement in their dispute with the Canadian government. According to the introduction to the reprint, this was the first autobiographical sketch of Mounted Police life to appear in print. From the author's preface: "This book is divided into three parts, the first of which contains a history of the campaign of the North-West Mounted Police, in the year 1874, under command of Colonel French. The second part contains the history of our sojourn in the far North-West, and gives an account of the journeys made by myself over vast plains; the first, undertaken to acquaint myself with the manners and actions of the Indians in their primitive state, and the second, in discharge of official duty, and to study further the Indian character. The third part is an account of my return journey from Fort Saskatchewan via Saskatchewan and Red River, and thence Winnipeg, Superior, and Huron to Sarnia, and thence by rail to Quebec. This part will be found the most interesting of the three, and also the most useful to intending settlers in the North-West as it contains geographical and agricultural information which will give an idea of the future of that region governed by the Saskatchewan" (iii-iv). The French from which it was translated does not appear to have ever been published.

Neu Elsass. Diese neue deutsche Ansiedlung: etc.] in Nord-Amerika. Liverpool, England: Turner & Dornett, 1885.
Folder incl. 13p. illus., map. Fold. to 15 x 9cm.

Probably the misspelled word in the title should be Ansiedlung and the spelling here is a product of misinterpretation of Praktik.
However, it is not possible to be certain since this work does not appear in the expected online catalogue. "Neu Elsass" was a German colony in the Regina district.

Homes for millions. The great Canadian North-West, its resources fully described, Charles Mair and Frank Oliver contributors. Ottawa: B. Chamberlin, Queen's Printer, 1891. 108p., illus. 25cm.

Also published as: Homes for millions: The resources of the great Canadian North-West. The reasons why agriculture is profitable there and why farmers are prosperous and independent. Ottawa: Government Printing Bureau, 1892 [?] + text, ix, 75, 108p. Publication of this emigration pamphlet caused a great furore in official circles. An "archaic mass" of material was collected by members of the NWT Council for the Department of Agriculture in Ottawa. The Department had Davin edit it. After it had been printed, Lieutenant-Governor Royal of NWT objected vehemently to Davin's association with the enterprise. Other contributors were Mair and Oliver. For the story of the publication see C.B. Koester: "Mr. Davin's pamphlet on the North West: A bureaucratic comedy of errors" in Saskatchewan History, vol. 6, no. 1 winter 1963, pages 27-32; see also file no. Campbell, Wellington

A Red Country farmer gives his opinion of western Canada. [Crookston, Minn.? s.n., 1893?]. 1 sheet. 28cm.

Traveling with the assistance of the Commissioner of Dominion Lands and L. A. Hamilton (CPR Lands Commissioner: Campbell left Crookston, Minnesota August 25, 1893 to examine farming prospects in Saskatchewan. Stopped briefly in Winnipeg, Indian Head, and Regina, he spent several days around the Prince Albert district, especially Birch Hill, Caron River, and Stony Creek, and "found them all first-class for mixed farming. Soil good, plenty of hay and water, with an abundance of timber for building, fencing and fuel: crops of all kinds were as good as I have ever seen." Indeed Campbell was so enthusiastic about the farming potential and the new lands he bought a half section.

Bryce, George
A history of Manitoba: its resources and people. Deluxe edition. Toronto & Montreal: Canada History Co. 1906. x. [3] 692p., plates, ports. 28cm.

This numbered edition, of which there were at least 472 copies, is described as "deluxe" - yet there is no evidence either in the volume itself or in library catalogues of an edition which was not deluxe. The first part (pages 5-307) deals with the history of Manitoba, with particular emphasis on the various immigrant groups which have contributed to the growth of the province. The "Biographies" section (pages 309-672) describes the lives of some Manitoba notables, among whom Bryce includes himself. There are portraits of some of these notables throughout the work. According to the preface, "To tell the story of Manitoba, and to give examples (such) by portrait and description as the men who are building up the new province is the object of this book" (page 4).

Au Canada, de Paris à Vancouver: notes d'histoire et d'aujourd'hui. 2e édition. Paris: L'Édition moderne, Librairie Ambert. [1903?]. 286p. 1 leaf. 19cm.

Includes description of Prairie Provinces. The first edition is said to have appeared in 1907 but it has left no specific trace in online library catalogues. However, McGill University has two copies, one of which states on the cover it is "deuxième édition." The pagination in both is identical. The only differences are that one says "deuxième édition" on the binding and one binding is red, the other green. It is likely there is only one "bibliographic" edition and that the "deuxième édition" is really the same text in a different binding.

within. As love and domesticity added, so did the Mounted Police: they were used not so much to comment on what the West was or would become, but just to build tension." Walden, Journal of Canadian Studies, vol.34, no. 2, Summer, page 481.

Allan, Luke [pseud.]

Blue Pete: half breed. A story of the cowboy West. Toronto: McClelland & Stewart, c1921. 21 [1 leaf, 9-284p. 20cm.

Also published, London: Herbert Jenkins, 1921. 256p., New York: James A. McCann Co., c1922 (284p.). This was the first of the author's novels about Blue Pete, the Métis ex-outlaw and undercover investigator for the Mounties in the territory from the Cypress Hills to the Rockies. One segment of this story appeared in Canadian Magazine (January 1911) as a short story. The last in the series was Blue Pete in the badlands, 1954. "When Amy began writing the Blue Pete stories, he wanted to say something serious about the development of the West. Like innumerable authors before and after who dealt with frontier areas, he was attracted to the difficulty of reconciling an existing order with the imperatives of encroaching civilization. He brought to this question two sets of perceptions. The first and most important was the English Canadian Protestant vision of western development. The second was his own experience of being in the West. The two were not quite compatible. After his simplistic expectations of Edenic transformation corroded, Amy backed away from romance toward myth, abandoning any possibility of commenting seriously on western society. One reason why Amy's work seems American at first glance is that unlike most Canadian prairie novelists, who wrote about the agricultural frontier, he wrote about the ranching frontier. This was logical, for it was the West he had encountered." (Keith Walden, "Blue Pete and Canadian nationalism: Vision and experience in the Western novels of William Lacey Allen," Journal of Canadian Studies, vol.34, no. 2, Summer 1999, page 40).

Becker, Heinrich
[The truth about Canada]. Edmonton: n.p. 1914?]

* Arrangements for a large German immigration also were underway involving a plan to farm 90,000 acres along scientific lines of German thoroughness with good financial backing: 40 families of about 500 persons were duly settled upon 18,000 acres at Hussar near Bassano. Herman Becker issued a pamphlet in March 1914 entitled The truth about Canada and intended to stir an organized German migration to the West. When war came his newspaper Herald remained distinctly pro-German. * [Hopkins, The Canadian Asiatic Review of Public Affairs 1914, pages 663-664. Hopkins recorded the many objections to what some perceived as invasion by Becker's newspaper but not reactions to the pamphlet. Evidence of the pamphlet's existence is yet to be found but it seems reasonable to assume it would have been in German.
